SOCIAL MATTERS.

The Children's Hospital Entertainment-Receptions and Notes.

Miss Susan Hale gave the first of her series of readings for the benefit of the Children's hospital yesterday afternoon in the pretty chapel of All-Soul's church. The chairs were all occupied by a most attentive and apprecia all occupied by a most attentive and apprecia-tive audience. Miss Hale's system in reading a volume is to dwell upon the graphic points of the story in hand, and then to bridge over the lengthy details in a rapidly sketched outline, highly condensed, but bringing out all the color and merriment of the tale. The story chosen yesterday was Richardson's "Sir Charles Grandison," and the listeners be-came well acquainted with that ultra-perfect young aristocrat and the heroine, Miss Harriet Byron, in the hour and a half that Miss Hale took to delineate the characters. The reader, who is large and comely, sat in a chair during her reading. She has a pleasant face and an agreeably modulated voice. The course, a novelty here, is most amusing, and is instructive in the litera-ture and manners of a century back in London, as the selections are all from British authors, and if the hour for the reading were chosen earlier—it is 3:30 in the afternoon at resent—the auditorium of the church would be required for the patrons. As that portion of the afternoon is absolutely required by many ladies for calling at this season many of the ticket holders were not able to be present.

Among those who filled the room were Mrs.

Folsom, Mrs. Hobson, Mrs. and Miss Williams om, Mrs. Hobson, Mrs. and Miss Williams, of New London, Conn.; Miss Gray, Miss Collis Smith, Mrs. Thomas Wilson, Mr. B. H. Warder, Mr. S. G. Ward, Miss Howard, Mrs. Phenix, Miss Rebecca Dodge, Mrs. Leiter, Mrs. Mc-Guire, Mrs. Preston Sands, Mrs. Bergen, of Brooklyn; Mrs. C. C. Glover, Mrs. Phenix, Mrs. Wylie. The next reading will be given at All Soul's church on Friday afternoon, January 11, at 3:30 o'clock. The romance of that day will be Female Quixote," written by Mrs. Charlotte Lennor in 1752.

Madame Romero held the first of her brilliant afternoon receptions yesterday. The handsome suite of salon, parlor, dining-room, and ball-room was lighted by electricity, and a succession of gay companies filled the house from 3 to 6. Madame Romero, in a high gown of blue satin and velvet, received the callers in the drawing-room, and with her stood Mrs. Menocal in a handsome toilet of navy-blue satin with velvet trimmings. In the dining-room Mrs. pointed opening at the neck, edged with white ace, poured the tea, and Miss Ida Thompson, lace, poured the tea, and Miss Ida Thompson, in blue cashmere and wearing a superb set of turquoise stones, necklace, daisy-shaped pin and bracelets, served coffee at the other end of the long table. Miss Mary Sherman, in white silk and gauze; Miss Edith Soulé, in an empire dress of white Valenciennes lace, tied at the waist with a broad sash of cream satin; the waist with a broad sash of cream satin; Miss Wheeler, in pink nuns' veiling; Miss Florence Bacon, black tulle and yellow ribbons; the Misses Rose and Emilie Preston, in white the Misses Rose and Emilie Preston, in white silk and crape toilets; Mrs. Jules Guthridge, in white cloth trimmed with gold cords; Mrs. Sagrario, of the Spanish legation, in pink china silk entertained the guests, and Miss Rosecrans, in black silk and jet, served the punch. A string band in the ball-room played airs that induced many of the young people to dance. Among those present were Mrs. John Sherman, Mrs. and the Misses Huyck, Gen. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Sowden, Mrs. Senator Pugh, Mrs. Pugh, jr., Mrs. Wadsworth, Mrs. and Miss Black, Mrs. George Gorham, Gen. Rosecrans, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pollok, Mr. Willard Warner, Mr. John W. The large number of ladies and gentlemen who were present at the meeting of the Travel Club Monday night were treated to a number, or rather a couple of numbers, not down on the program. Mr. W. A. Croffutt was engaged in reading selections from his "Silhouettes of instead of dying.

Just such incidents as these in the army, and "silhouettes" had been exhibited to the mental gaze of the auditors, and everybody was prepared for the fourth, when a young lady in the rear of the hall screamed with all the vigor at her command. There was no apparent cause for the outbreak, and many were the supposi-

A NEW CATCHER.

The Washingtons for 1889-Ted Sullivan's Return from the West.

Ted Sullivan, last year's manager of the Washington club, has returned from his trip less. "I have sold Fuller to the St. Louis," he said, "and signed a new catcher named Ebright. He was recommended by Mack, and is, in my opinion, the best catcher and all-around player on the Pacific slope. He comes from San Francisco, and is a hard hitter."

"What do you think Washington's prospects are for a good team next year?" asked the reporter.

"I don't think they were ever better. We was third base, and Washingtonians who re-member his fine fielding and throwing and timely batting, when the local club belonged to the eastern league, would be glad to see him given a chance at the Capitol park.

it is claimed that a player who is not good enough for St. Louis or Louisville is not good enough for Washington. This reasoning does not always hold good, as was instanced by Ganzell's case. He was not good enough for Philadelphia, and therefore Wash-ington did not want him, but he was good enough for Detroit, a better club than either, and Boston this year gladly paid $3,000 for him. There is no reason why White could not play as well as he did several years ago, and if he does he is good enough for any team. He would be delighted to play here. But, then, can he be secured?

During the twenty-four hours ending at noon to-day deaths were reported to the health office as follows: Jacob B. Fisher, white, 40 years; Patrick Haney, white, 78 years; Mary Fitzgerald, white, 80 years; Jas. H. Dyer, white, 40 Annie Holmes, colored, 8 days; Frederick Shipley, 1 year.

HINTS FOR EMERGENCIES.

Lectures on the Immediate Treatment of Accidents and Sudden Illness.

Not long since a boy was knocked down and run over by a cab near Iowa circle, and his left leg badly cut. No one seemed to know what to do, and what was done was just what should not have been done. The timely and purely accidental arrival of a physician, who proceeded at once to stop the flow of blood, saved the boy's life, otherwise he would have bled to death in fifteen minutes. But a few weeks ago an old man on one of the streets of a neighboring city was observed to totter and fall. He was immediately picked up and held in an upright posture, when, as a subsequent exami-nation showed, he had been struck by cardiac failure or serious apoplexy, and should have been laid on his right side, full length, given plenty of fresh air, and his legs, feet and hands well rubbed, in which case he would have lived,

WHY SHE SCREAMED.

The afflicted lady, for so everyone supposed she was, left the rooms without betraying the secret of her distress, and the audience was calmed down to such an extent that the readings proceeded. Not for long, however, for just as Mr. Croffut breathed forth one of his most completely-polished periods a gentleman in the rear of the rooms yelled out "Rats!" and most completely-polished periods a gentleman in the rear of the rooms yelled out "Rats!" and jumped fully three feet in the air. Mr. Croffutt paused. He could stand coolness from an audience, and he would not allow himself to be disturbed, even when some of the sitters in the front row went to sleep, but he could not, without sacrificing his self-respect, continue to read when his best efforts were so rudely greeted. Avoid excitement, crowding the patient or giving a stimulant. In nine cases out "I don't think they were ever better. We are after some crack material," he continued, "and if successful I have no doubt but that Washington will take a high position in the flow of blood. The position of the femoral artery can be ascertained by feel-ing with the hand, as its pulsations are in uni-son with the throbbings of the heart. Gen. Pack-enham, who commanded the English forces at the battle of New Orleans, January 8, 1815, was wounded through this artery and bled to death before a surgeon could arrive. Dr. Gurthrie, in his "Commentaries on Surgery," says that Gen. Packenham was wounded in Spain by a musket ball passing through the right side of his neck. There was much loss of substance, and when the wound had healed substance, and when the wound had healed he returned to duty with a stiff neck and his head drawn to the right side. In a subsequent battle he received a similar wound on the left side of his neck, which healed in prethe same manner and drew his neck and head

THE ARTERY OF THE LEG divides just before the knee joint into three smaller vessels, and in case of hemorrhage from cuts or otherwise it is best, he said, to apply the compress directly and firmly over the wound. The same rule obtains in wounds of the hands and feet. Hemorrhages of the head, chest and abdomen are almost universally fatal, for the reason that it is difficult to get at the severed vessels to stop the flow or to ligature them, or from the laceration of some viscous whose integrity is necessary to life, or from inflammation from the passage of a projectile or weapon. At the same time, however, ministra-tions to the afflicted should not cease until the COURT IN GENERAL TERM.

All Coming to the Inauguration. From the New York Sun.

It seems that Col. Elijah Wolfram Halford may not go to the inauguration after all. The entire population of Indianapolis is going, with the exception of fifty men, who are to be chosen by lot to stay at home, look after the furnaces, keep off thieves and fire, and feed the car horses. But if Col. Halford should be drafted into this service he might perhaps be able to import a substitute from Kentucky.
